

VIEWPOINT 32: ART

Publisher's letter
Editor's letter
People – contributors

7 – THE INFORMATION:
A critical selection of the new season's most intriguing plans and products

25 – THE ANALYSIS:
Art - the new frontiers for the expressive

Screen believers
Art goes digital - now it can be emailed

Original copies
Light lends renewed life to the statuesque

The art of the matter
Can anything be given art's kudos?
Blank canvas, blank cheque
The dubious/dynamic relationship between art and business

Spoken in jest
The new pranksters: performing arts with a smile
Fleeting pleasures
Viewpoint's modern allegory

78 – THE PORTFOLIO:
New work by new creatives with artistic leanings

88 – THE ARGUMENT:
Five thinkers offer provocative perspectives

Dial e for evolution
Human 2.0 – savant or self-destructive?

Let's get digital
Stemming the loss of our digital heritage

Behind the green screen
Sustainability is just another sales patter

The shape of things to come
De-materialisation and the future of our stuff

From fomo to lomo
Missing out, switching off and loving it

100 – THE VISION
A visual essay of challenging new concepts

110 – THE FEATURES:
We don't take plastic
The currency of authenticity
Sales of the new century
The spirit of the souk lives on
End of the road
Car culture performs an emergency stop
Man overload!
Strategies against the data crush

136 – THE SURFACE
Another planet
Otherworldly materiality

146 – THE DIGEST
Snapshots of some big ideas
Sound affects
Why your bleeping gadgets bleep at all
Hands that do dishes
Marketing to the stay-at-home dad
City limits

The smart city and radical urban renewal
Water, water everywhere

The mundane gets a fashion overhaul
Continental shift

Changing attitudes to Africa

Behind the curtain
The new age of extreme transparency

Going underground
Why city living could be downwardly mobile

160 – THE FORM
From animism to florals, soft pastels to monochrome brutalism